Race sentiment rose to unprecedented heights. All night and far into the carly morning angry men swept up and down usually peaceful thoroughfares, bent upon beating or killing some dark shadowed figures which scurried ahead of their shouts.

Volleys of Pistol Shots.

From all over the downtown section volleys of pistol shots could be heard at intervals through the night. Police sta-tion cells were swamped with offenders. The police force of 700, augmented by almost 500 soldiers, provost guardsmen and calvarymen, were rendered powerless before the mighty tide of the excited throngs.

During the early part of the evening activities were confined to the downtown districts, but later on they branched out into the outlying territory.

Cavalry Checks Mob.

The backbone of a centralized white mob attack on colored settlements north of New York avenue, on 7th street, was broken at about 10 o'clock last night. A clamoring mob of thousands swept up 7th street to Massachusetts avenue. Here the troop of cavalry coming south from a big col-
